BROWN UNIVERSITY

CONSENT FOR RESEARCH STUDY PARTICIPATION

Researchers:

Paul Testa

Assistant Professor of Political Science

Brown University

paul_testa@brown.edu

You are invited to take part in a survey designed by students in POLS 1140 Public Opinion and American Democracy

What is this study about?

The purpose of this survey is for students to get experience designing and analyzing survey data.

Why I am I being asked to participate?

Eligible participants are residents of the United States who are 18 years of age or older. If you do not meet these requirements, please close the window.

Your decision to participate or decline participation in this study is completely voluntary and you have the right to terminate your participation at any time without penalty. If you do not wish to complete this survey just close your browser.

What will I be asked to do?

You will be asked to answer some questions about yourself and your opinions on politics. You will also be asked to indicate your preferences for hypothetical candidates.

This study will take approximately 10 minutes of your time.

Will I be paid?

You will receive $2.00 upon completing this study and submitting the HIT.

What are the risks?

The risks to individuals participating in this survey are comparable to those that exist in daily life from reading the news or during normal Internet use. You may refuse to answer any questions you are uncomfortable with and you may end your participation in this study at any time. If you wish to withdraw from the study or have any questions, contact the investigator listed above.

What are the benefits?

Although your participation in this research may not benefit you personally, it will help us understand how voters think about politics and elections.

Confidentiality:

No personally identifiable information will be collected (e.g., name, address, phone number, email) by the researchers. The data will be deleted following the completion of the course in December 2024. Brown University staff sometimes review studies like this one to make sure they are being done safely and correctly. If a review of this study takes place, your records may be examined. The reviewers will protect your confidentiality. This survey is fielded on Qualtrics. For information more about Qualtric's data and privacy policies please click here: https://www.qualtrics.com/support/survey-platform/getting-started/data-protection-privacy/

Important information about your MTurk ID:

This ID does not directly identify you, but it can be linked to your public profile page. You may therefore wish to restrict what information you share on this public profile. We will not share your MTurk ID with anyone outside of our research team. If you ever contact us, Amazon.com will automatically insert your email address into the message so that we can reply to you. We will use your name and email only to respond to your communication and will never distribute it to anyone outside of our research team. Voluntary: You do not have to be in this study if you do not want to be. Even if you decide to be in this study, you can change your mind and stop at any time.

Who can I talk to if I have questions?

If you have any questions about your participation in this study, you can email paul_testa@brown.edu. If you have questions about your rights as a research participant, you can contact Brown University's Human Research Protection Program at 401-863-3050 or email them at IRB@Brown.edu.

Please print a copy of this consent form for your records, if you so desire.

Trump says there's 'no price tag' for his mass deportation plan

President-elect Donald Trump told MSNBC on Thursday that one of his first priorities upon taking office in January would be to make the border "strong and powerful." When questioned about his campaign promise of mass deportations, Trump said his administration would have "no choice" but to carry them out.

Trump said he considers his sweeping victory over Vice President Kamala Harris a mandate "to bring common sense" to the country.

"We obviously have to make the border strong and powerful and, and we have to — at the same time, we want people to come into our country," he said. "And you know, I'm not somebody that says, 'No, you can't come in.' We want people to come in."

Now we'd like read a brief analysis about President-elect Trump's tariff proposals and answer a few questions

TAX FOUNDATION

How Will Trump's Universal and China Tariffs Impact the Economy?

By: Erica York

President-elect Trump has promised to impose steep new taxes on trade, including a 10-20 percent tariff on all imports, at least a 60 percent tariff on Chinese imports, and a 25-100 percent tariff on Mexican imports. At least a dozen estimates on Trump's proposed tariffs show they will have a harmful effect on the American economy, supporting the standard view among economists that tariffs reduce trade and distort production, leading to lower standards of living.

A tariff is a tax on imported goods, applied at the border when a business or person in the US purchases a good from abroad. Tariffs increase the price of foreign-produced goods, incentivizing consumers to switch to domestically produced goods and providing domestic producers room to increase their prices.

The benefits that domestic producers receive, i.e., higher prices and sales, come at the expense of consumers (including business consumers). For this reason, tariffs are redistributive, taking income from some and giving it to protected businesses.

President-elect Trump may want to impose tariffs to encourage investment and work, but his strategy will backfire. Tariffs will certainly create benefits for protected industries, but those benefits come at the expense of consumers and other industries throughout the economy.
